Referral and Scientific Coding

- Referral and initial coding
- Scientific coding for all funded grants, contracts, interagency agreements, intramural projects
- Manage NICHD's contributions to NIH reporting systems (RCDC, e.g.)

Tracking Results

- Science advances (250+)
- Publication tracking and analysis
- Training and career development outcomes
- Program evaluation, monitoring, and assessment
- Selected examples:
 - Data sharing
 - Clinical center collaboration
 - Public health campaigns
 - Pediatric critical care

Reporting

- Types of Reports:
 - Scientific category reporting (275 +)
 - Narrative reporting (150 +)
 - Requests (220 +)
 - Congressional Justification and related
- Reports go to:
 - Congress
 - NIH
 - HHS
 - OMB
 - White House
 - Interagency working groups

Issue Statement: Why It Is Important

Over the years, several practical problems and difficulties discouraged the testing of drugs in pediatric populations, including:

- Lack of necessary technology to monitor patients and

Key Points

- BPCA enacted 2002, reauthorized 2007 & 2012 (NIH portion through 2017)
- Most drugs currently prescribed for children have not been tested for pediatric use, but progress has been made
- BPCA:
- Allows for prioritization of therapeutics that need study in children
 - Supports research to compile data for labeling
 - Helped establish Pediatric
